Environmental Hearing Pending

Local Boarding Houses Are Cited For Violations

Five Belle Glade boarding houses are currently entangled in a legal argument which could, if construed the right way, mean places such as the Holiday Inn are legally migrant labor camps.

Charles Rhodes, director of the Palm Beach County Health Department's Division of Environmental Sanitation, said the county is seeking a legal opinion from the state Attorney General's Office for a clear definition of a "seasonal agricultural worker."

Rhodes said the five rooming houses involved are two owned by A.L. and Esther Mutch, two owned by David E. Hill and one owned by Willie Miller.

At issue is a 1972 statute defining the definition of a migrant labor camp to any establishment, "accommodating more than five seasonal agricultural workers."

The new statute would take the rooming houses under the jurisdiction of the state Division of Hotels and Restaurants, and put them under the State Health Officer, Dr. Wilson Sowder.

Rhodes said Sowder sent instructions throughout the state to begin inspection of the facilities newly brought under his jurisdiction by the statute. He said his division immediately began checking hundreds of rooming houses were issued notices of violation, beginning in December of 1973.

"The biggest problem in the violations," Rhodes said, "is that so many of these rooming houses were built without including plumbing and cooking equipment in living quarters now occupied by couples and families."

"You can get by with a bathroom down the hall," he said, "but you can't expect a married couple who may have children to eat out three times a day."

He said the violations the houses are being cited for are also covered by the Division of Hotels and Restaurants but that division has apparently not been enforcing the regulations.

Rhodes said ordinarily the owners of the rooming houses in question would be required to appear before the Palm Beach County Environmental Control Hearing Board but said those appearances are being held up until an opinion is issued on the definition of a seasonal agricultural worker.

He said he has already been involved in several discussions about the definition and what it could mean.

"That's where the problem lies right now," he said, adding problems could arise if such places as the Holiday Inn in Belle Glade, which has been housing Australian engineers involved with mechanical cane harvesters throughout the season, were designated migrant labor camps.

"Most of the rooming house owners on the coast and in the Glades have been most cooperative," Rhodes said. "Some have been completely cooperative but I'm sure they have their reasons."

He said the major reason goes back to the primary problem of plumbing.

"Plumbing is expensive," he said, "and I can see where some of the owners might balk at installing it. But it doesn't really matter what the legal opinion is going to be. It's just a question of who enforces the regulations."

'They Are Guilty'— Mayo

South Bay's new associate judge, began his career Tuesday night with the county. "I'm going to be the (police) chief. If he says this guilty, he's guilty."

The associate judge's position is traditionally held by the city's mayor. Deaton's office until a reshuffle two weeks ago which left the former mayor in the police commissioner's job while Mayor Vernita Cox took Deaton's place.

Mrs. Cox was first nominated for the position by Commissioner Neel Mayo to the associate judge's position at the request of Public Chief August Dreeson, who said it wasn't proper for Vice-Mayor and Police Commissioner John Deaton to hold the job.

Mayo's statement came as a surprise to determine whether the police have enough of a case to go to court. Mayo's statement came as a surprise to determine whether the police have enough of a case to go to court.

Growing With The Glades

Groundbreaking ceremonies for Everglades Federal Savings and Loan's new building at 125 N. Main St. will be held at 10 a.m. Monday, Association President Richard Poston announced Wednesday. The new two-story building will be located on the northeast corner of Main St. and Canal St. in what is presently an empty lot, but which used to be the site of the Pure Oil

Truck Stop, torn down almost a decade ago. All of the directors of the Association will be present at the groundbreaking as will city officials. Poston said it would take about a year to complete the building which "signifies the Association's great faith in the continued growth of the Glades."

Sanitation Company Is Hit With Discrimination Charge

South Bay Mayor Vernita Cox said Tuesday Night garbage and trash pickup service is being supplied to only half the town, with the boundary lines being drawn at the edges of the white and black communities.

South Florida Sanitation Co. Assistant Secretary Commission denied the company practices discrimination at 25.

"We have certain days to pick up in a certain area," she said, "and sometimes we do have trouble with drivers but there's no way we discriminate against anybody."

After a check of her files, Mrs. Cox said all collections were made on schedule last week and she had received no complaints.

Mrs. Cox said she and City Building Inspector Max Harvelto toured the city Sunday morning and said she found garbage cans throughout the black section of town overflowing, while those in white neighborhoods were clean.

"I'm really upset," she said about the service being supplied by South Florida Sanitation, the company which recently received its original franchise from the city.

Mrs. Cox said City Clerk Virginia Walker to have the commissioners placed on the agenda of the next meeting of the Palm Beach County Commission.

She said the city has previously asked County Commissioner E.W. "Bud" Weaver for permission for the city dump in Belle Glade now operated by South Florida Sanitation, and has been refused.

"But I understand," she said, "there is a new county dump in Pahokee and maybe we can get the use of that."

"If they're (South Florida Sanitation) going to serve part of town and not serve the other part," Mrs. Cox said, "we don't need that kind of service."

Mrs. Cox said the four also made with Harvel began as a casual drive around town but she began to notice the accumulation of garbage throughout her neighborhood, which was supposed to have been serviced the day before, and became increasingly upset.

It was only after she contacted Harvel, she said, that she began a city-wide check and noticed the discriminatory pattern.

In another area, the commissioners decided unanimously to "consider" paying LaGrow Irrigation, Inc. the remaining $22,000 the city owes for the new sewer system if LaGrow agrees to pave six city streets.

Commissioner Woodrow "Woody" O'Neal said he would be willing to consider the payment provided LaGrow agrees to pave Northwest 12th Street and Second, Third, Eighth, Ninth and 11th Streets with at least one inch of asphalt, "doing a proper job."

LaGrow had left a letter with City Clerk Virginia Walker, asking the city for some kind of decision on the repair of streets damaged when the sewer lines were installed.

The contract calls for the streets to be left in the condition they were in before construction began but LaGrow has been contending several of the streets were in such bad shape they should be completely paved instead of filling in the patches.

During the tour of some of the damaged streets on Feb. 23, Lionel LaGrow, president of the company, agreed with city commissioners Esther Berry, O'Neal and Neel Mayo to patch pave the streets where that was what the commissioners said they wanted at the time.

Shortly afterward, LaGrow said he toured the streets again with a spokesman from the city's consulting engineering firm and subsequently went before the city commission again with an offer to drop $10,000 from the contract price, to be used by the city as seed money to completely pave the streets.

That was one of the alternatives in the letter Mrs. Walker read to the commission Tuesday, the other being to patch the streets but Third and Eighth, which were to be repaved.

LaGrow said last week he wasn't able to pave those two

Soil And Water Vote Coming Up Tuesday

Glades freeholders got their last chance for representation on the Palm Beach-Broward Soil and Water Conservation District's board of supervisors.

For the first time, Glades voters will be polled at the Belle Glade Fire Station building on US441.

"All I'm interested in," John said this week, "is getting some representation from the Glades on the board because the whole business of the district has to do with farming."

John pointed out his only opposition in the election is a Lake Worth man while all the other four supervisors already on the board are also coastal residents.

If John is elected, he will finish the four year term of Cecil D. McClure, who resigned from the district board of supervisors earlier this year.

He said there is about two years left of that term.

John also said he understands the present supervisors are getting involved in areas above and beyond the boundaries of the district's responsibility.

"I'm elected and I find this is going on," he said, "I'm going to try to put a stop to it. The funds used to pay for the district's activities, whether they come from the federal or county government, are all paid by the taxpayers."

"It's all the taxpayers' money," he said, "and it shouldn't be wasted in areas that are none of the district's business."

John has been heading up the South Florida Conservancy District for almost 10 years and has been associated with the soil and water conservation district on a $5 million watershed program.

Because of this, he said he has heard the charge of conflict of interests leveled against him but he said this isn't so.

"The watershed project is jointly sponsored by the Palm Beach-Broward Soil and Water Conservation District, the Hendry County Soil and Water Conservation District and the South Florida Conservancy District," he said, "but it is administered by the conservancy district."

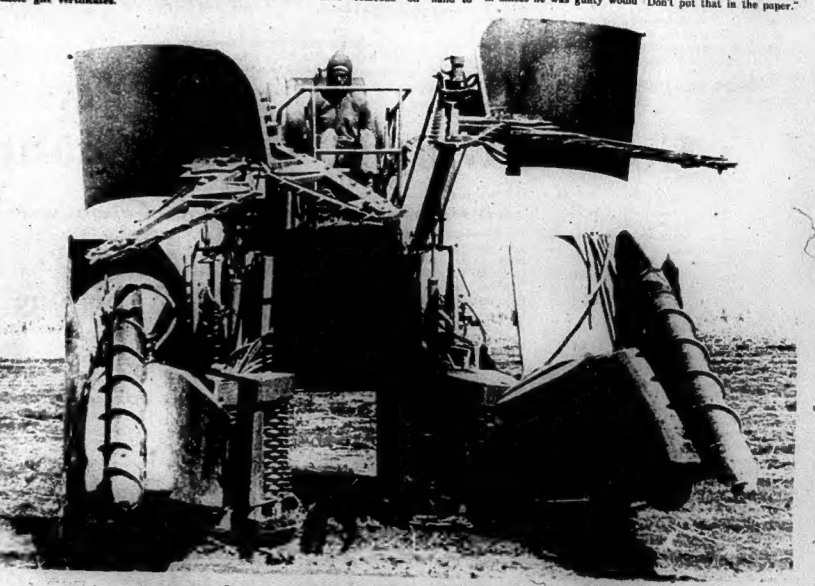

The other two districts have nothing to do with the watershed project's administration," he said.

John said he has been speaking to local groups recently about the necessity of maintaining Glades representation on the district after Tuesday and said the hardest thing about his campaign is overcoming voter apathy.

He noted that at the last election, only 25 voters turned out to vote from the Glades. All of them giving their votes to Fritz Stein Jr. and Stein was heavily defeated because of the heavier turnout on the coast.

"I just hope we're not up against something like that again this time," John said. "But I think if we can get the voters out, we'll win."

Reminding some monster from a science fiction movie, this sugar cane harvester developed at Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida looks as though it's ready to devour anything in its path. After three years of working in the cooperative's fields, a patent

Here Come De Judge

"Be sure you have your brain in gear before engaging your mouth," is pretty solid advice to anyone and for public officials in public meetings, it's considered an axiom by those who know.

That's probably why the Tuesday night South Bay City Commission meeting was put into such an uproar when Commissioner Neal Mayo blurted out what he did.

Mayo had just been elected by the other commissioners to the post of associate city judge, with the duties of binding over persons arrested by the police to Municipal Judge Allen Everard.

"I'm going to go along with the (police) chief," Mayo announced. "If the chief says he's guilty, he's guilty." That was enough but he then proceeded to further demonstrate he didn't understand the duties involved by saying, "The chief wouldn't bring them in if they weren't guilty, would he?"

"My job is to bind over people the police arrest, isn't it?" he asked Judge Everard. Everard told him, "No, your job is to bind over anyone you think might be guilty," emphasizing the word, "you."

Within two minutes, Mayo destroyed whatever effectiveness he may have had as associate judge by prejudicing himself as ready to accept the police officer's word a person is guilty.

He should be replaced.

Turn Out Tuesday

Taxation without representation is tyranny and the use of taxes without representation is little better.

Following two elections which were almost as secret as the ballots cast, the Palm Beach-Broward Soil and Water Conservation District finally gave advance notice of the special election coming up Tuesday.

It could be too late.

While Glades farming interests may have been over-represented on the district's board of supervisors, as were charged in past elections by present board members, there's a possibility we won't be represented at all after Tuesday.

Fred John is running for the seat occupied by Cecil D. McClure until McClure resigned in January. If he is defeated, the Glades will have no representation on the board which spends our dollars, a lot of dollars.

District elections in the past, largely because few people knew about them, have traditionally had light turnouts.

It admittedly isn't the most glamorous election going, and you do have to be a freeloader to participate (a requirement that probably wouldn't stand ten minutes in today's courts) but they're spending our money.

They're helping spend $3 million on one watershed project alone and the district is also responsible for hundreds of thousands of dollars in other projects.

Those projects largely take place in the Glades, are largely farmer-oriented, and Glades residents, farmers and the rest of us, deserve a say on how that money is spent and what's done with it.

But people on the coast have been waking up to the district in recent elections. While Fritz Stein Jr. received the vote of virtually every ballot-caster from the Glades in the last election, he was still defeated on the coast.

John, the manager of the South Florida Conservancy District for the past ten years, is a qualified man with all the credentials for the job.

Fred John may understand more about the work the district is supposed to do than the all four supervisors now seated combined.

He's qualified and he's from the Glades.

Vote.

I GUESS IT'S AS TOUGH BEING A PRISONER OF THE DOLLAR AS IT IS BEING A PRISONER OF WAR.

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR VACATION HOME FROM FIRE

Everyone dreams of building a home away from home. But if your vacation home is in or near a forest, you have to be extra careful with fire. So here are just a few simple rules to remember.

WATCH OUT FOR TREES. Always be sure to remove any part of tree that comes within 10 feet of the opening of a chimney or stovepipe. And be sure that any tree near or overhanging your home is cleared of dead or dying wood.

LOOK OUT FOR WIRES. The wires carrying the electricity to your home can cause a fire if not properly maintained. So be sure to call your local power company if there are wires rubbing against tree branches or the roof of your home.

SCREEN YOUR CHIMNEY. It wouldn't be a vacation without a roaring fire in the fireplace. But sparks from your chimney can wander into nearby brush if they're not controlled. So always attach a non-flammable screen to the top of your chimney or stovepipe. And be sure the openings in the screen are no more than 1/8 inch in size.

feeding the walkers when they returned to Belle Glade or if they were still on the road at 2 p.m. to distribute sandwiches to each of the checkpoints.

This was one place where our planning broke down because a large number of the sandwiches we expected were never delivered. At 2 p.m. when I went to Belle Glade to check on them, I found we were almost out of sandwiches.

One of the men working with his own pocket to buy bread and lunch meat but by the time the sandwiches were made, it was too little and too late to feed the walkers still on the road.

If the person who wrote the letter had checked with the Belle Glade checkpoint, she would have known that the problem was and could possibly have pitched in to help solve it.

I do take full responsibility for the breakdown, however, and can only say I'll do my best to make sure it doesn't happen again next year.

Sincerely,
Marjorie Echois, Chairman

At the time all the furor was being raised by the city commission about Playboy being in the library my wife was reading the book The Exorcist which she had checked out at the Belle Glade library.

From the incidents she quoted me in the book I wondered at the commission's objections to something as mild as Playboy. Not really being that interested in witchcraft and matters concerning the occult I did not read the book myself—until recently, that is.

When all the furor broke out over the movie (e.g. people retching, people leaving halfway through, people fainting from pure fright, long long lines, etc.) I decided to first read the book and then go see the movie.

I trudged on down to our local library to check it out. Much to my surprise all three copies the library had were already checked out. And I was informed there was normally a waiting list of one of the copies—so popular was the book with the people of Belle Glade.

So I went out and purchased a paperback edition of the book. It was everything I had expected it to be—and then some.

*****

It was in turn vulgar, sickening, sacrilegious, religious and powerful. All the nude Playboy bunnies that ever have been couldn't have offended as many people as this book must have.

Are the book and the movie the cheap exploitation many of their critics make them out to be? Or is it an honest attempt to bring out the horrors of possession and exorcism—if indeed you believe in either, or both?

You must deal with both. This holds true for exorcism and the movie.

I can deal with the book and the movie in the same breath, because they are exactly alike. If you read the book the first thought that comes to mind is that they couldn't possibly make a movie just like the book.

But they did. The movie is as visually graphic as the book is verbal. The only difference is that for me visual is much more gripping. The movie had a much greater impact on me because it was visual.

How you ask, can a story be both religious and sacrilegious at the same time?

The main theme of The Exorcist is that of a very important little girl who is possessed by a very powerful demon. The demon takes over her body and makes her commit all sorts of vulgar and sacrilegious acts. These acts are not only physical but verbal as well.

Part of the main theme is the two priests who are asked to exorcise the demon from the little girl. One has performed the act of exorcism before on the same demon. The other is a Jesuit priest contacted by the mother of the possessed child.

The underlying or secondary theme is where the movie becomes religious. The young Jesuit priest, unbeknownst to the mother, is going through a period of great doubt—great doubt in his faith in God.

To go any further into the story would be to reveal too much to those who have not read the book.

If you haven't read the book, should you? It depends.

If you are a very deeply religious person, you will find it very disturbing. You are going to have to put aside an awful lot of prejudices to finish the book. But I think you will find it very rewarding if you can look beneath what I consider to be a veneer of vulgarity for the real story.

For those of you any less than that, you will not find the book as offensive. But you will find it very disturbing. You may very well find yourself identifying with the young priest at the end.

As for the movie, well, don't go to see it without first reading the book. Then, if you feel you can physically accept everything you have just read, then by all means go to see this very powerful movie.

If you can't then don't go. Because everything you read in the book you will see on the screen.

Golden Gloves, Green Giants And True Grit

Sure is nice to have a white collar job. Last week, I made a deal with Glenn to take over the job of delivering the Herald to racks and news stands around the area. It's getting to be an education.

It's a side of the newspaper business I haven't been involved in since I delivered Grit door-to-door more than 20 years ago in Jacksonville.

I guess I'd forgotten how much a stack of 250 papers even small weeklies like the Herald, can weight and how smearable fresh ink is.

I don't know if I'll ever get the shirt clean again.

Guess I'd also taken for granted the bliss of ignorance when someone stops you on the street and demands to know why the papers weren't in the racks on time.

The talk when I could tell grippers to, "time to Anne, I don't have anything to do with circulation," is over. Actually, believe it or don't, I haven't had a single complaint yet.

Knock on wood!

I figured I needed something to round out my Wednesday's anyway. Now, when I come to work somewhere between 5:30 and 6 a.m., I'll know I won't be faced with nothing to do once we've finished putting the paper to bed.

All seriousness aside though, everything went pretty smooth that first day but I can almost hear the chorales around here the first Wednesday things get ragged again...and that's the norm rather than the exception.

I'm a heavyweight myself, but I'll tell you one thing. You're not going to catch me in the same ring with one particular heavyweight out at GCI.

Clifford Johnson is a member of the GCI boxing team and when he stepped through the ropes against Daytona's Joe Day in the final round of the Golden Gloves Tournament in Miami last weekend, he had two bouts to his credit...both wins.

Day, on the other hand, had pushed his 285 pounds through 108 amateur fights and had won most of them. As a matter of fact, I understand Day is a champion of some kind in the Southwest.

One minute and thirty-eight seconds after the bell rang, birds sang for Mr. Day. Mr. Day went back home to Daytona and brother Johnson is on his way to Denver for the national championships.

Oh yeah, Clifford weighs in at 277 pounds...72 pounds more than Day. Wonder if that had anything to do with the outcome?

Congratulations Clifford. Take a message to Colorado for us and bring back a national championship for the boys to admire.

You know, the overgrown Chlorophyll Kid who imitates Santa Claus in the commercials.

It isn't a laughing matter though. A couple of personnel types were down here beating the drums for workers during the summer at what will be the world's largest green bean processing plant in Beaver Dam, Wis.

We were talking about the relative merits of the weather in Belle Glade and Beaver Dam and while they were luxuriating in the Florida sunshine and shuddering about the cold weather they'd left behind, I could only think about how nice it must be in Wisconsin in the summer when the temperatures

I love asparagus...always have. It's best when it's fresh but I like it canned too. The only way I've bought it that I don't care for it is to freeze it.

Now, to me, and the whole thing could be just personal taste, almost every vegetable I've ever bought both frozen and canned tastes better when it's frozen...everything but asparagus. One of the guys said he'd noticed the same thing but with him, it was green beans. Said canned green beans beat frozen ones two to one.

Now that's something for someone among all the vegetable experts in the area to get their teeth into and the play on words was intentional.

Painters Host For Beta Xi Dinner

Beta Xi members and their husbands enjoyed a formal dinner Saturday evening, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Painter.

The party was given in honor of the Chapter's Girl of the Year, Mrs. Lee Burke.

Following dinner, someone from each table of guests read a portion of a poem written for the occasion by Mrs. Tom Burbee until the Girl of the Year was revealed in the final stanza.

The traditional tiara and engraved silver tray was presented to Mrs. Burke for her outstanding contributions to Beta Xi by last year's recipient, Mrs. Ben Painter.

Candlelight and a lovely arrangement of spring flowers centered the serving table. The menu included chicken and broccoli, wild rice, tossed salad, rolls and butter.

For dessert, fresh strawberries dipped in sour cream and brown sugar. After dinner, liquors were enjoyed in the garden along with singing accompanied by Eddie Smith and his band.

The Painter's guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Burke, Mrs. Tom Burbee, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Crockett, Dr.

A related advanced course in Reading Improvement will be presented on Monday and Wednesday nights.

The purpose of the special courses (in English as a Second Language) is to help students who are non-native speakers of English to organize and execute their thoughts in English.

"The same course would be useful to native Americans whose speech patterns are non-standard," Wilson said. In Reading Improvement, the student competes only with himself, according to Mrs. Darcey.

All of last year's students increased their reading skill, the instructor said.

Registration for the courses starts March 25 and runs through April 1.

BG Girl Chosen College Queen

KATHRYN BROWN, QUADRANGLE QUEEN AT LAGRANGE COLLEGE ...and her court, selected just before Miss Brown's graduation at Georgia school.

A senior from Belle Glade, was recently selected as the 1974 "Quadrangle Queen" at LaGrange College in LaGrange, Ga.

Chosen as queen during the annual "Quadrangle" dance, was Kathryn Ann Brown, a social work major.

Miss Brown has been very active in her college career at LaGrange. On campus she is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority, Pi Kappa Phi little sister, 1973 "Homecoming Court," and has been named to the Dean's List. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roy

Garbage Hearing Set

Residents living in the Glades area of West Palm Beach County but outside the three municipalities are in for a hike of garbage collection rates if requested rate changes are granted.

The Palm Beach County Commission will hold a public hearing at 10 a.m. on April 22 in the commission chambers in West Palm Beach to hear pro and con arguments on the request by South Florida Sanitation Co.

South Florida Sanitation General Manager Walter Cunningham said Tuesday the hike would be from $5 to $5 per month for residence in the unincorporated areas. The first hike in approximately two years.

Cunningham said about 1,000 residents west of 20 Mile Bend will be affected by the rate hikes should the county commission grant his request. He said the largest single reason for the requested increase is the increased number of restrictions placed on disposal of garbage and trash by environmentally oriented laws.

"This new ecology business," Cunningham said, "is getting us frustrated, exasperated and energized and it's costing us $1,000 a month."

"We just can't operate at our present rates and make a profit," he said.

Another reason for the rate increase, he said, has been the increase in wages the company is being forced to pay.

"When we started several years ago," he said, "we were paying our workers and drivers $60 to $80 a week. Now, we're having to pay $135 to $175 a week."

The area involved in the public hearing consists of everything bounded on the east by Range 99 East, which runs through 20 Mile Bend, and on the North, west and south by the county line.

Insurance Corner

By Milton Carpenter

If a key man dies

Every business has what is known as a "Key Man". He may be the owner or a vital engineer, salesmanager, or "sparkplug" who is singularly responsible for forging ahead with new business or products. He may possess rare skills or knowledge. His personal contacts may attract business or he may be a source of the firm's credit or reputation in the field.

It seems strange, how so many businesses will insure their physical assets, cars, buildings, inventories; all of which can be replaced; and forget completely about protection against the loss of a man who may mean more to the business than the building it is housed in.

A very simple solution to this risk, is for the company to insure the life of its "key man" to protect against eventual economic loss until a suitable replacement can be found.

Several weeks ago, we were asked by Willie White, a second grade teacher at Glades Elementary School, to take part in her class' study of newspapers.

Herald publisher Glenn Laney visited Mrs. White's class and talked to her students and, following his talk, Mrs. White gave her children the assignment of writing their own news stories.

Since these stories would be a child's eye view of newspapers in general, we were naturally interested and asked Mrs. White if she'd let us see them when they were finished.

Below is a sample of the stories themselves, although many included pictures or advertisements. As our readers probably will be, we were surprised at the quality of many of them.

Enjoy them with us.

NEEDLEPOINT NEWS

Have you always wished that you could transcribe your favorite color photo, original design or work of art onto a needlepoint canvas? Now you can, thanks to a unique new process that's very much to the point.

Previously, the method used to achieve a personal design or portrait-type image on canvas has been the time-consuming and costly hand-painted method. Today, an innovator in the field of photo imaging on fabric has come up with a process that faithfully reproduces a picture on canvas at a price that is far below the cost of hand-painting.

Favorite subjects of photo-needlepointers, according to its developers, Seeko Industries, Inc., are loved ones, pets, houses, boats and magazine photos. Original designs and kiddie art are also very popular.

The new method takes any size color or black-and-white photo and enlarges it to a full 8 1/2 inch by 11-inch size on a 14-inch square canvas. Color photos produce color canvases, and black-and-white photos make black-and-white canvases.

See your local needlepoint store, or orders may be mailed at the introductory price of $19.95 per canvas to Seeko, P.O. Box 128, Tappan, N.Y. 10983. All photos and designs are returned.

When it comes to needlepoint, it's easy on the eyes in more ways than one.

You can scratch mahogany scratches from your woodwork waxes by following this method. Paint the scratches with iodine. Later go over the entire surface with furniture polish. This will eliminate any noticeable defects. For shiny furniture, use black liquid shoe polish, or black eyebrow pencil. Wipe with a furniture polish cloth.

Now you can "write off" ink stains from ball-point pens by following these suggestions. Sprinkle the stain repeatedly with acetone or any acetate (available at most drugstores); do not use acetone on acetate, anise, dymel or velvet. Washing off with some ball-point ink stain. Outside remover will remove ball-point ink from leather goods.

Grease stains can be gone; yet you can remove them with grace. You can help eliminate such stains from synthetic and cotton clothing by pouring a little Ajax All Purpose Cleaner, full strength, on the stain. Rub it in and wash the garment as usual. Repeat the procedure a few times for especially stained items.

Much sugar cane grows in Belle Glade. The trucks and the train haul the cane to the mill to be grind and made into sugar.

The sugar is shipped to many places to be sold in the stores. At my house, we use sugar for cornflakes milkshake, coffee, tea, lemonade, cakes and pies.

The men that cut cane help us. They are our helpers. They get very dirty working in cane.

My mother did work in cane, but she has and other job now.

Scouts Aid Fellow Scout

Boy Scouts from Troop 821 worked last Saturday morning at Everglades Presbyterian Church to help a fellow scout complete his Eagle project.

The boys, under the direction of Scoutmaster, Robert Fincannon, painted their meeting rooms which are part of the church's educational building.

The project was planned and carried through scout David Teets who is working to complete his requirements for Eagle Scout this year.

Under the new program, a scout must have earned 24 merit badges and have completed a project benefiting his area before he is eligible to apply for Eagle Scout.

In addition to Mr. Fincannon, the boys were supervised by Urban Poling and Frank Teets, Scouts participating in the project were Jimmy Chambliss, Mike Fincannon, Paul Orsinger, Charles Schiele and David Teets.

What a job! Early men believed that storms were due to the wrath of a supernatural beast!

WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA?

Some people call it "Big Ideas." Others, less respectful, would term it "plan b." But the most who come up with the really bright ideas need not have an education of either. For who hasn't gotten a brainstorm at one time or another? But how many possess the successful man's willingness to follow up on his "big ideas?"

Maybe you can see your self in one of three persons: A fat man in Chicago by the name of Wilcoxon, L. Judean wanted to fasten his shoes without huffing and puffing. So, in 1932, he invented the "separable fastener"—better known as the zipper.

Huffing and puffing of another sort were responsible for an earlier idea which affected the transportation habits of millions, through again. A dash of Kirkpatrick Macmillan's idea has been added to our "hobby horse"—but better. And it takes fewer than ordinary contraptions and gives you a smoother ride. This is one idea that's definitely meant to be a lesson!

You might also be marveling at "tail" servomotors built from a housewife, surprised at her husband's early return from work one day in 1913. What he did, after placing his hand on the back of her head, was to jump to greet her man. Where began to turn the wheels of the housewife's mind? Well, she was a spinster, a spinster's wheel still produced cranks and pedals to drive the rear wheel—and invented the bicycle!

What would you have done in James Hargreaves' place? Imagine yourself back in 1769. Through a few factors had sprung up, the machine was far in the dim future; the housewife's spinning wheel still produced cranks and pedals to drive the rear wheel—and invented the bicycle!

In one of the rare moments when Mrs. Hargreaves' spinning wheel was idle, her two sons used it during their spare play. The new angle of the wheel on the floor gave Hargreaves his big idea: a method of spinning eight threads at a time certain-walk "spycraper," as it was called, and produced the Chicago's 12-story Home Insurance Building.

voluntarized England's textile industry. That little of lemon which science has found more use for than any other citrus fruit, has come through again. A dash of Kirkpatrick Macmillan's idea has been added to our "hobby horse"—but better. And it takes fewer than ordinary contraptions and gives you a smoother ride. This is one idea that's definitely meant to be a lesson!

You might also be marveling at "tail" servomotors built from a housewife, surprised at her husband's early return from work one day in 1913. What he did, after placing his hand on the back of her head, was to jump to greet her man. Where began to turn the wheels of the housewife's mind? Well, she was a spinster, a spinster's wheel still produced cranks and pedals to drive the rear wheel—and invented the bicycle!

In one of the rare moments when Mrs. Hargreaves' spinning wheel was idle, her two sons used it during their spare play. The new angle of the wheel on the floor gave Hargreaves his big idea: a method of spinning eight threads at a time certain-walk "spycraper," as it was called, and produced the Chicago's 12-story Home Insurance Building.

Tax Aids

this is the third in a series of five articles on 1973 Federal Income Tax returns prepared as a public service by the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

An exemption of $750 for each dependent can help cut an individual's income tax burden. So it's important not to overlook any of the exemptions available.

A taxpayer's first exemption is himself, and if he is at least 65 years old by the last day of 1973 the $750 exemption is doubled. If the taxpayer is also blind he is entitled to a third $750 exemption.

Young children, of course, are dependents and the dependent.

cy continues beyond age 19 if they earn less than $750 a year, derive more than half their support from the parent-taxpayer and do not file a joint return of their own. If the child is a full-time student, the $750 gross income limit does not apply, regardless of age.

The rules applying to natural children apply also to step-children and those who have been adopted.

Any person who is a member of the taxpayer's household and meets the criteria of residence, income and support requirements and does not file a joint return of his own can be taken as a dependent, with no exception for the taxpayer's own children and certain other close relatives. It is not necessary that they live with the taxpayer.

If one shares with others in the support of a parent or other dependent, with no individual providing more than half the dependent's support, it is permissible for one of the contributors to take the dependent's exemption each year. The others have to declare on Form 2120 that they will not claim an exemption for the individual that year and those forms are filed with the return of the person who claims the exemption.

Any otherwise qualified dependent who was alive at any time during 1973 may be taken as an exemption. This applies to one who might have died on Jan. 1 and to one who was born as late as December 31. If a spouse died during 1973 one may still file a joint return with the deceased spouse unless the taxpayer remarried before the New Year.

Because part of 12th Street had been paved by the city and 10th Street had been paved by the county, however, he said he would sue the city.

The commission agreed Monday night they didn't want any slurry-seal or sand-seal paving done, however, because that time the county doesn't build up.

While the commissioners were discussing the sewer system, Mayor said he had visited the new sewage treatment plant that morning with a representative of the company which built it.

He said the representative was disgusted because he was expected to replace three things which had been broken because they hadn't been sealed and some bearings, equipped with grease fittings and instructions, had been left out.

Mayo also urged, and the other commissioners agreed, action to put warning signs on fences surrounding rail stations and locks on the gates in these fences.

"There is 220 volts under the caps of those pump motors, and 440 under at least one of them," he said, "and what's to prevent a kid from lifting the cap. If he does, there's enough electricity there to kill him."

In other actions, the commission authorized City Clerk Virginia Walker to purchase a $1,200 copying machine from Hixson Griffin, Inc.

Authorized Mrs. Walker to contact an architect to design a combination fire house-police station.

Agreed to consider Cabern Amphibious of Oklawaha for the city decides to do any more street paving.

Decided not to pay an $18,150.76 bill by Gold Coast Paving for paving one street and part of another one until certain "errors" are corrected, including widening 12th Street two feet, as called for in the contract, uncovering a manhole which was paved over and finishing the paving of First Street.

THANK YOU GLADES AREA

To All Glades Citizens:

Words cannot express the gratitude I feel toward the people of Belle Glade and Pahokee for their efforts in making the March of Dimes Second Annual Glades Walkathon the success it was, but I would like to take this opportunity to try.

While I was given the task of coordinating the big walk, there is no way any one person could do the work necessary to set up the walk, collect the money or hold the party given last week for the walkers.

The March of Dimes had the cooperation of virtually every civic club and group in Belle Glade, as well as many of the merchants and governmental leaders.

No one club or group dominated the contributions, in money, merchandise and work, but everyone who took part in the overall effort added up to more than the total sum for the overall success.

Two couples who have worked in both of the first two walkathons held in the Glades were invaluable. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Huggins and Mr. and Mrs. Hughie Jones contributed more than money.

They gave their time, in the preparations, during the walk and preparing and holding the collection party. They ran errands, kept records, found food and cooked for the others.

They, along with my sister-in-law, Shirley Echols and my husband, Rens, could be described as the glue that helped hold the Walkathon together, although it couldn't have taken place without workers, walkers and contributors.

Last year, Palm Beach County collected more funds for the March of Dimes from the Walkathons than any other county in the nation and received national credit in New Orleans during the Southeastern March of Dimes Conference. The Glades played a key role by collecting $28 per walker then.

This year, we had a total of $24,000 pledged to the walkers, an average of $30 per walker, and any credit for this effort should and will have to go to the entire community.

One of the few breakdowns we had during the walk was that we were short some 250 sandwiches intended to feed the walkers when they returned to Belle Glade or after they had left Pahokee and hadn't returned before 9 p.m. The sandwiches, which had been promised by four local organizations, never appeared so when we were ready to distribute the food to the checkpoints, they weren't available.

Even an emergency $20 purchase of bread and bologna Jim Huggins made out of his own pocket wasn't quite enough.

A partial list of those who were particularly responsible for the walk's success would have to include:

Registration workers were Patty Tritt, Jennie Huggins, Jannette Jones, Shirley Echols, Nancy King, Mary Frances Burke, Jeannie Woodard.

First Checkpoint: Elite Community Club, including Mrs. Mattie Walker, Mrs. Josephine Harrison, Miss Barbara Pinnely, Mrs. Brenda Montgomery, Mrs. Estelle Pyron, Mrs. Jessie Jenkins, Mrs. Deloris White, Mrs. Pauline Lockie, Mrs. Florence Lockie, Mrs. Lillian Jones, Mrs. Effie Greer, Ruby Rutledge and Mrs. Shirley Speakers.

The Second Checkpoint at Rardin Park was manned by Belle Glade Rotary Club members Robert White and Dale Stapp.

Taking the finish line were Nu Kappa Sorority members Brenda Prescott, Renie Jo Lane, Maria Carter and Tina Rongione.

Other people who contributed time on the day of the walk included Bob Woodard, James Brown, Gilbert Perkins, National Guardsman Bucky Holt (who drove the Pop-out Pickup) and Chuck Outto, who painted signs for the line of march.

Providing first aid for sore feet and blisters were a car donated by the American Red Cross and the Belle Glade Fire Department.

Unexpected refreshments were provided by Bob Miller who took over the Pepsi-Cola stand at Rardin Park and another refreshment point where Lake Equipment Co. provided free Coca-Cola.

What sandwiches we did have were given by the Belle Glade Junior Woman's Club, the Belle Glade Woman's Club, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Chapters Beta Xi, Mu Upsilon, Xi Beta Gamma and Mrs. Tucker.

Among those who deserve special thanks are Florida Sugar Cane League Public Relations Director Bill Hunter, who contacted members of the league and coordinated donations from the members.

The strong right arm of Glades Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida Personnel Director Charles Echols helped prepare the Glades for the walk by literally carrying Little Carmen Doneza, a former poster child, on part of her tour through the area.

STRONG ARMS HELPED CARRY CARMEN ON TOUR OF SUGAR MILL
...it was high light of her visit to the Glades to help promote the local walkathon

Charles had to carry Carmen in his arms on her tour through the Glades Sugar House, the highlight of her entire trip because Little Carmen was born with birth defects still crippling her.

The major effort following the walkathon itself was the collection party...which was the payoff to the walk since this was where the reason for it was realized.

It was at the party we began collecting the more than $24,000 pledged and the party was our way of saying, "Thanks" to all the Glades residents who walked a mile for the life of a child.

A large number of people made the party possible.

Again, Jim Huggins, and his wife, Jennie, and Hughie and Jannette Jones, Charles and Shirley Echols, Judy Huggins and Bob Miller made their presence felt by doing more than their share of work.

Collecting funds and issuing certificates to walkers were Carol Zumpf, Bonnie Blitch, Thurmond and Dixie Kemp, and members of the Jaycees, Anne Nash, Lynnda Scroggin, Jannette Meredith, Vicky McMullen, Inge Stambaugh and Sue Miller.

Other workers filling key positions were Sherman Chapman and Bob McIntosh, Ann Welty, the Pahokee Chairman, was also present with a contingent from Pahokee, including Judy Griffin, Paula Buckner and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Turner.

On hand to guard and transport the funds were Belle Glade Detective J.R. Eberly and Belle Glade Auxiliary Police Officer Mike Zumpf. Also on hand was Pahokee Police Auxiliaryman Bob Welty.

I would also like to thank both personnel and inmates at Glades Correctional Institution. Under the leadership of Philip Shuford, GCI Superintendent, Glenn R. Hundley and his men provided a 300-cabbage pot of coleslaw and enough beans to feed 500 people.

One of the most important contributions came under the leadership of John Sinkowitz of GCI, who was responsible for the GCI rock band, who provided entertainment throughout the party.

Because of the normal expenses which would have been incurred by giving such a party for the walkers, much of the money donated for the county genetic clinic would have ordinarily been sidetracked.

That wasn't necessary because of the contributions made by a large number of merchants in the area, in money and in food and soft drinks.

Those merchants contributing included January's Market, Bailey's Grocery, Casarte Grocery, U-Save Grocery, both the Belle Glade Winn Dixie-Kwik Cheks, Miners Grocery, Time Saver, McArthur Dairy, Glades Bakery and Wilson Grocery.

There were also the Alabama-Georgia Store, Woodham's Market, W.T. Grant's, Echols-Collins, Carter Electric and South Bay Growers, Eli Witt, Pepsi Cola, Royals.

Then, there were those who went "above and beyond" to help lay the groundwork for the big walk.

One corporation making a special effort was Sugarcane Growers Cooperative of Florida, which picked up the tab for a luncheon held the Wednesday before the walk.

That luncheon was where Carmen Doneza was introduced to several city officials from Belle Glade and Pahokee, some of whom made the walk themselves.

There were the three Belle Glade Lions, Milton Carpenter, Skipper Bowles and Bert Ward, who walked the route a week and a half early. They not only walked from Belle Glade to Pahokee, they cleared a large amount of obstacles such as broken glass, out of the way.

And there were the officials: Mayor Duncan Padgett and Councilwoman Wynona Cummings from Pahokee, who made it as far as the airport, and Belle Glade Commissioners Ralph Kirk, walking as far as Hooker Highway, and Bill Greer, who walked all the way to Pahokee with Mayor Aubrey Farmer.

Last, but by no means least, I would especially like to express my gratitude to Belle Glade City Manager William Mallory and Channel 5 Newscaster Van Hackett, the big money winners for the walkathon.

Between the two of them, Van Hackett completed the walk and Bill Mallory finished 17 miles, they earned $4,000 for the Palm Beach County Genetics Center operated by the March of Dimes.

And that was what it was all about anyway, from the beginning to the end. This was the Glades' way of helping children, even unborn children, from the Glades and elsewhere in the county, while they have been unfortunate enough to have birth defects.

Thank you and thank you again.

Marjorie Echols, Coordinator

TWO ROW SUGAR CANE CUTTER, WINDROWER BRINDING FIRST PATENT IS CHECKED
...by Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida Research and Development Superintendent Larry Fowler.

Coop's Mechanical Harvester Receives Patent After 3 Years

Three years and a number of modifications after it began harvesting sugar cane for the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida, a U.S. patent has been awarded to the coop for a unique mechanical harvester.

Cooperative research and development head Larry O. Fowler said the patent was awarded Feb. 12, more than three years after the harvester was put to work and almost four years after it was designed and built.

Fowler said he was hired by the cooperative in 1960 to design and supervise the building and development of mechanical cane harvesters when cooperative officials became convinced they needed the harvesters and nothing in use would provide the answer.

"The unique thing about our machine," Fowler said, "is that we've gone with two machines and everybody else is using a combine."

He said the first machine cuts and winds the cane from two rows, stacking the felled cane between the rows.

The second machine follows the first, picking up the cane, chopping it into shorter lengths, cleaning it and loading it onto in-field wagons.

"We feel," Fowler said, "the two-machine concept is better for us because the machines aren't as heavy as a combine so we don't have the bearing problems that a combine has."

More important, he said, is the fact the division of labor doesn't tie the cutter to the speed of transport. A combine must halt its cutting after filling one train of in-field wagons until another train of wagons is moving into place.

Sometimes, especially when the transfer point is very far away, that wait can stretch into long the combine might spend more time idling than cutting.

Using the cooperative's method, Fowler said one cutter is accompanied by two loaders and it doesn't matter whether the loader has to stop to wait for transportation.

Like most of the other companies in the area, the cooperative has the in-field wagon, transfer, highway trailer system to transport the cut cane out of the field to the mill.

Fowler said it was because this backing transportation equipment is so hard to get that the cooperative hasn't been able to use all its mechanical harvesting equipment.

"We have three cutters and two loaders we're using in protection now," Fowler said, "but we've got a lot more for this season but we're just getting started up."

He said the cooperative had ordered the necessary number of backup machines to use with the cutters but the cooperative simply hasn't been able to use the equivalent of one harvester system at any one time because the backup machinery hasn't been delivered.

"We hope to be a lot better next year," Fowler said, "because we should have the trailers, transfer and field wagons then."

One of the cutters, recently delivered by J & L Manufacturing in Louisiana, is still sitting in the shop and has never been in the field.

Although it has never been in the field, Fowler's shop crew has already been making modifications through up since the machine was ordered.

He said the crew is continuously making modifications to both the cutters and the loaders.

"The machines we have now are cutting cane," he said, "and we're happy with the basic design but we're still developing the harvesters and we have a long way to go."

He said the loaders have had more development work done on them than the cutters because the basic problem with designing a reliable harvester has been clearing the cane before it reaches the mill.

Fowler said the cooperative has several patents pending on loader equipment and his staff has also done up with a new type of cleaner for the loaders which the cooperative intends to get a patent for.

Besides the cleaner, which Fowler said is an improvement over the ones used by other harvester-makers, he said the cooperative has a number of patents pending but the patent granted Feb. 12 was the first the cooperative has been granted for a harvester.

Fowler said he was involved with mechanical harvesters long before coming to Florida, designing harvesters for J & L Engineering in his native Louisiana.

He said the primary problem in designing harvesters in the Florida state from the light much soil which makes it so easy to sprout the cane instead of simply lifting it upright.

"We're still definitely in a development stage," he said, "and if anybody else in the industry isn't, they should be."

He said they were approaching the mechanical harvester problem from a different road, he said, "and the more roads that are explored, the better chance of ultimately coming up with something that is right for the Florida industry."

Ho, Ho, Ho

From The Valley Of The Green Giant Comes Jobs

For the benefit of anyone wondering about the deep "Ho, ho, ho," being heard lately around Belle Glade, Seals Chase isn't back.

That's just the Jolly Green Giant looking around town for more workers to man the world's largest greenhouse processing plant in the Green Giant's valley at Beaver Dam, Wis.

Green Giant Corp. personnel chairman Iva Eivestrom and Patrick D. Evans were in Belle Glade last week to begin a recruitment campaign to expand the Belle Glade-based work force at the Beaver Dam plant.

"This started back in the late '60's," Eivestrom said. "We've had from 50 to 100 workers leave Belle Glade every year at the end of the sugar harvesting season to work for us."

"Now, we want to expand the program," he said. "We could take as many as 200 workers north with us this summer."

Eivestrom emphasized the recruiting isn't an attempt to "poach" labor away from Belle Glade agribusiness because both areas are seasonal.

"The idea," Eivestrom said, "is to dovetail the workers into the two seasons. That way they're employed year-round."

Eivestrom and Evans said the season at the Beaver Dam plant, now being expanded, will begin July 1 and end Oct. 15 and factory workers and wages begin at more than $2 per hour.

Evans said the present wage scale runs from $2 to $2.50 per hour but that will be modified April 1, and the work will include processing green and wax beans, freezing of beans, peas, sweet corn and cornmeal dishes.

Positions include Warehouse persons, lift truck operators, Cook room attendants, maintenance crew, janitors, maintenance workers, frozen packaging line operators, weighers and packers.

Eivestrom and Evans are working through the Florida State Employment Service office on SR715 and office director Ed Brancati said Green Giant is the only company he knows of that is operating this type of program.

"This isn't anything new," Eivestrom said. "We started with British West Indies workers back in the '40's and we've had some of the same men and women returning every year since then."

"Some of our best workers come from Belle Glade," he said, "and some of them have worked their way up to foreman's positions."

He said workers from all over the United States converge on Beaver Dam, "a town with a

Bank To Host Show

A one-man art show at the Bank of Belle Glade set for April 10-12 will feature the work of nationally recognized naturalist-artist Bill Weisling.

Weisling, who works out of two studios, one in the heart of the Ocala National Forest and the other in Jacksonville, specializes in limited edition prints of wildlife.

The artist said he spent more than half the time to complete one of his paintings in researching the subject in its native habitat and making preliminary sketches.

The Dances of Nature, as he refers to his series of prints, is the result of spending 16-hour days in the woods, making the sketches and using a telephoto lens to capture scenes he will later reduce to canvas.

A native of Pennsylvania, Weisling has spent a good part of his life to observing deer tracks in the Rockies, muskies in Pennsylvania and other wildlife in

Although he now devotes his full-time energies to painting these natural scenes, he has a background as a teacher, a designer, a commercial artist, public relations and advertising.

Among his accomplishments as an artist is a mural he painted for a worldwide hunter who lives in Jacksonville, painting seven of the animals the hunter killed on a safari in Africa on the ear of an elephant bagged by the hunter.

Specializing in Americana and wildlife and issuing limited edition prints of his paintings, Weisling is part of two trends in modern art.

Limited edition prints, such as those to be displayed at the Bank of Belle Glade, are prints released in series of, for instance, 100. Each print is numbered with the number of the print and the total number of prints, and the original plates are destroyed.

Student Faces Moment Of Truth

NEW TEACHER SUSAN ROYAL GOES OVER THE EYE WITH HER FIRST CLASS OF STUDENTS
...at Mercer University as the pretty soul gets her first taste of teaching elementary school in Georgia.

The moment of truth has come for Susan Royal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Royal, 216 N.W. Ave. E. Belle Glade, a Mercer University senior and one of the school's 24 winter quarter student teachers.

Backed by ten solid quarters of college courses, Susan has stood for the first time before a classroom filled with bright-eyed children. In this, her 11th quarter of college, theory and practical experience have merged.

She and all the student teachers agreed on two points: the first week in the classroom is the most exhausting they have ever known, and classroom experiences should come earlier than the midway point of the senior year.

When visited at Maud Pye School, Susan was helping her sixth grade students learn the parts of the eye. She said that she had been given much initiative in some subjects particularly, and she had praised for her supervising teacher, Marian Spry.

Susan and most of the fledgling teachers said they had great freedom to use initiative in most classrooms, making their own lesson plans, and assuming teaching responsibilities.

With all the streaking going on nowadays, can you imagine what an international streaking tournament would be like? For instance let's say the competition took place in a small town such as Belle Glade.

"Hello everyone, this is Ann Ouncer here in Bare Beach welcoming you to the First Annual International Streaking Tournament. Streakers from all over will be competing here in this bumpy little town in Florida for the Championship Streaker Award."

We have guys and girls such as Nudie Knute from Holland, Numb Nicki (that's a girl ladies and gentlemen) the Russian Red Streak, Clothes less, the Canadian Blue Streak (it's cold up there) and America's own Ned Bare among others in the competition.

The matches will take place all day long in unexpected places and at unusual times, so be on the lookout for non-streakers, you may see a flash of bare skin around.

Winners will be judged as to the originality of the place during the streak, the number of observers and the time it takes for him to streak the stoves, time counts 4:00.

Why I do believe here is one of the bare-bottomed streakers now.

Yes, here he comes through the crowd of people on Main Street, watch him go! Hey, Mr. Streaker may I have a word with you for a moment? Please sir, just stand here.

The streaker has his hair cut short and looks rather refined.

"What do you want?"

"If you please sir, would you tell us your name?"

"My name is Ben Butt and I'm from North Carolina. The reason I streak is because I'm bored with the problems in life and I would like to have a change of pace. I've now changed my pace of running from two minutes to five. Anything else?"

"Wow, you sound like you've given hundreds of interviews already."

"I have. Well, I must be going."

"Bye. And good luck on your pace! Now let's see if we can get hold of another streaker. Here comes one now. Excuse me sir, would you step here a moment?"

The long hair streaker looks up in surprise, "Golly, as I on TV? Like this? Quick somebody give me a towel, a blanket, anything! Hi Mom, Hi Dad! Don't worry, I'm not a streaker. It's just trick photography. Actually, I've got all my clothes on, see?" With that the streaker runs off.

"Well, so much for a local streaker. Sorry folks, got to stre- run. But I'll be back later with the winner of the streaking competition and details of the tournament."

Later in the day...

"Here we are again folks, with the winner of the first annual Streaking Tournament in the world, this time with his clothes on. It's the one and only Skinny Sam! Tell me Skinny, what place did you pick to streak?"

"Um, mumba."

"What did you say? I'm sorry but I didn't hear you."

"Um, mumba."

"Fuh? What kind of talk is that? There must be some mistake. Wait Sam, uh Skinny don't take your clothes off here! Please sir, the competition is over, there's no need to streak here! Why, he's not a human, he's an ape! There he goes, off into the sunset!"

"Um, mumba-a-a-a!" cries the streaker.

"Oh well, so much for the annual Streaking Tournaments. So long, folks!"

Inmate Wins State Championship By KO

A member of the Glades Correctional Institution boxing team won the state Golden Gloves heavyweight division championship last weekend in Miami with a crushing right-handed knockout blow.

Big Clifford Johnson, weighing in at 277 pounds, scored the only KO during the three-minute and 38 seconds round in the first round against Joe Day, 205, of Daytona Beach.

One observer said Johnson "used an incredible right to knock out Day." Johnson outweighted Day by 72 pounds.

Johnson brought the only championship home to GCI but three other GCI boxers made it to the final round of the tournament before being eliminated.

Featherweight Roy Burgess, who won the title in his division last year, was eliminated in a split decision match against Victor Madeo of Puerto Rico.

Two other GCI boxers lost unanimous decisions to Miami fighters when Waterweight La Salle Espino, 144, lost to Milton Bankston, 147, and Light Heavyweight Rodney Moore, 178, lost to Woody Clark, 184.

The tournament was dominated by the Miami and Puerto Rico teams, with four Miami men scoring wins and three wins being chalked up by Puerto Rico fighters.

Belle Glade was one of only three other cities represented in the winner's circle as the light middleweight division was captured by a Tampa man and the middleweight division was won by a man from St. Petersburg.

Last year, the first GCI was in competition, two state titles were captured by boxers from the institution.

ANSWERS ANSWERS ANSWERS

An adding machine performs accurately for anyone who uses it correctly. Each person may record a different column of figures. Answers will vary accordingly but each will be correct.

Life also registers what we give it... produces results correspondingly. Sometimes we are so hurried and hurried with whirling activities we forget to include worship.

When we do clear our minds for understanding and prayer with God, good results follow.

The Church has accurate answers for modern problems. Let it help you find correct solutions.

Earn Cash

The Reynolds Aluminum cash-for-cans mobile unit, which pays 10 cents a pound for all-aluminum cans will be returning to Belle Glade two times during March.
 Belle Glade's citizens were paid $1,138.90 by Reynolds Metals Co. last month. The area brought in 11,389 pounds of aluminum to the unit, which is the equivalent of 288,947 cans collected.
 Flattened, all-aluminum cans (also TV dinner trays, pie pans or other aluminum scrap) may be redeemed at 500 W. Canal St. on Thursday, March 14 and 28 from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
 Aluminum is the "Metal of Environmental Thrill" because it saves energy, doesn't deteriorate and is easily recycled for reuse. That makes it an energy bank that can be drawn upon again and again, according to Reynolds Director of Environmental Planning, Dr. Robert P. Testin.
 "For example," added Testin, "aluminum can be recycled over and over again, each time an energy savings of 95 per cent of that required to make virgin metal."

Census Begins

Three area women will include a number of local households in a nationwide sample of 50,000 families this month, concentrating on work experience and income during 1973 of household members.
 They will also ask questions concerning national origins of descent and whether the homeowners have moved since April 1970 when the federal census was taken.
 The three women conducting the census in the local area are Mrs. Betty Garriga, Mrs. Patricia Dugan and Mrs. Mary Caldwell.

no sabe que hacer en la vida, miles y miles andan como cadáveres ambulantes, a quienes la guerra destruyó sin que la grande o la bala haya matado. Hay personas cuya conversación consiste en quejarse, hasta el punto de ser una queja, y se han autogestionado que, han nacido bajo un signo de desdicha o infortunio, y se han metido en la cabeza que todo el mundo está en contra de ellos. Para ellos todo lo que existe en el mundo lo ven con coquepas oscuras, y por ende todas las cosas en un espejo torcido, los pequeños rasguños para ellos es un martirio, un dolorido insignificante es un dolor del corazón incurable, las pequeñas desventajas o discrepancias en la familia las consideran como una tragedia de la familia, las pequeñas decepciones o errores para ellos constituyen el derrumbe de la familia o de la sociedad. Con razón dice Swift de los pesimistas, que si todo cumpliera a pedir de boca, son entonces se quejarían, y dirían, porque no llegó eso antes, o mas tarde.

Soy tan desdichado dice una figura de Moliere. Que si yo fuera hombre, seguramente los hombres nacieran sin cabeza. Típico ejemplo del pesimismo. La desdicha de la pobreza y de la miseria es precisamente lo que acostumbra la gente al infortunio y se reconcilian con su pesimismo. Y, el que entra en la vida con ese pesimismo, yo no voy a dar pie con bola, así tal esta fracasado de ante mano. El que se convence a si mismo que la desdicha bajo un signo de infortunio, aunque la suerte le presente las cosas en una luz de oro, no le sabrá aprovechar o agarrarse en la suerte. El hombre que no ve mas que la parte negativa, o oscura de la vida, y no sabe encontrar la alegría o la felicidad, en tal vez se espolea a la luz, se priva de muchos momentos felices, y el mismo levanta un muro y así impide de dejar pasar la alegría o la felicidad. Hay una energía inexplorada en el alma de cada individuo que, aparentemente parece fracasado, o naufragado, porque han perdido el valor y la confianza en si mismos.

Van Wild Oca cuenta que una figura de su drama, se queja que alguien lo sigue en la noche, y que es un constante amenaza para él, para sentirse mas seguro, pide al servicio, que vigile quien es el que lo sigue y que lo agarrara, resulta ser que, el tipo que lo seguía era su propia sombra. La vida es un espejo, refleja la cara con que se mira. Si nosotros somos así, miramos con una cara de viernes santo reflejara la misma cara. No hay nada en la vida que, no tenga su sombra, o su lado brillante, todo depende de nosotros como lo miramos. No las cosas son oscuras sino nuestros ojos lo ven oscuro, no el mundo es triste sino nosotros lo vemos triste. continuo

New Beginnings

Spring is here again and as we watch the earth reveal itself, our spirits begin to rise. The fresh, clean smell after a spring shower and the balmy breeze all combine to impart a feeling of optimism and hope.

What better time for renewing our pledge to our country. Now is the time to consider what we can do to make it a better place to live for all of us. Now is the time to get involved with America and make a new beginning for better citizenship. SUPPORT AMERICA!
